Run Docker Container

The screenshot displays the Docker Desktop application window. The top navigation bar includes the Docker logo, the word 'PERSONAL', a search bar with the placeholder 'Search for images, containers, volume...', and several utility icons. Below the navigation bar, a message states 'You can do more when you sign in.' The left sidebar contains a list of management options: Containers (selected), Images, Volumes, Builds, Docker Scout, and Extensions. The main panel shows details for a container named 'kylin', which is running the image 'apache/kylin:apache-kylin-standalone:3.0.1'. The container ID is 'c4a103b22ffb'. It is currently in a 'Running' state, having started '1 second ago'. Below this, there are tabs for 'Logs', 'Inspect', 'Bind mounts', 'Exec', 'Files', and 'Stats'. The 'Logs' tab is active, displaying a series of log entries from the container. These logs show messages from 'util.KafkaSampleProducer:136' sending data to various categories like 'TOY', 'BOOK', 'CLOTH', 'Other', and 'ELECTRONIC'. The bottom status bar indicates 'Engine running' with system resource usage: 'RAM 1.09 GB', 'CPU 55.65%', and 'Disk -- GB avail. of -- GB'. It also features a 'BETA' label, a 'Terminal' button, and a 'New version available' notification.
